

Bronwyn Hall

Professor,

University of California, Berkeley

Ms. Hall is a professor in the Graduate School at the University of California, Berkeley, and a professor of economics of technology and innovation at the University of Maastricht, Netherlands. She is a research associate of the National Bureau of Economic Research and the Institute for Fiscal Studies, London. She is also the founder and partner of TSP International, an econometric software firm. Ms. Hall has published articles on the economics and econometrics of technical change and is an associate editor of the Economics of Innovation and New Technology and the Journal of Economic Behavior and Organization. Additionally, she is a member of the U.S. Federal Economic Statistics Advisory Committee; the Research Advisory Council of the Deutsche Bundesbank; and the International Advisory Board, New Economics School, Moscow.